Hello from the UPR team!

Our Mission

A reminder of our mission: we exist as an online platform dedicated to publishing critical scholarship produced solely by undergraduate students from the LSE, and universities around the world.

UPR Conference 2017

The Events Team have been working hard over the last few months to organise the UPR’s second annual conference. The event will showcase the work of four exceptional undergraduate researchers, which will then be discussed by senior academics in each respective field.

We hope that this event will act as a platform for undergraduate students to share their research and connect with the academic community in London, and that attending students will in turn be inspired to pursue their own research. Anyone currently writing (or interested in writing) a dissertation is encouraged to attend.

Come along to LSE Life Workspace 4 on 9th November 6:30-8:30pm

Research Team

We are now recruiting undergraduates from all years to join our first ever Research Team. The Research Team will be tasked with conducting a collaborative piece of research over the academic year 2017/18, which will then be published by the LSE UPR. The team will set out the research question, gather the data, conduct empirical analysis, and report the results. This is a great opportunity for undergraduates to acquire research skills and publish a paper!

We are also hoping that the Research Team will be able to present their work at this year’s Undergraduate Political Studies Association Conference in Cardiff.

Deadline for applications Midnight 6th October. Email a CV and cover letter to lseupr@lse.ac.uk.

Blog Entries

We are currently accepting blog submissions for the UPR website. The UPR publishes short academic pieces (from 750 to 2000 words) on any political topic.

Political science, political theory, social and economic policy, anything is welcome!

Email submissions to lseupr@lse.ac.uk.

A complete journal issue

The UPR Editorial Team are currently working hard editing five research articles to be published in the UPR’s first complete journal issue. The journal will be published online in January and will feature an international array of submissions.

The UPR team

We have an impressive team for 2017/18:

Editor-in-Chief: Hannah Bailey (BSc Politics and Philosophy)
Events Manager: Trishna Kurian (BSc Government and International Relations)
Events Co-ordinator and Copy Editor: Karina Moxon (BSc Government and History)
Events Co-ordinator and Copy Editor: Naomi Potter (BSc Politics and International Relations)
Associate Editor: Eponine Howarth (BSc Politics and International Relations)
Associate Editor: Bob Dong (BSc Government and Economics)
Associate Editor: Philipp Ershov (BSc Government and Economics)
Associate Editor: Felix Farley (BSc Government and Economics)

We are always looking for guidance and support from members of the LSE community, so please do get in touch! We are always open and free to discuss how we can continue expanding and moving forward. We would like to thank everyone so much for their support in the UPR project. Please continue to read us, write for us, and watch this space.

Best regards,

Hannah Bailey
